La Jolla, La Jolla,

Very few homes are within easy walking distance to the Village, La Jolla Cove, and cafes, shopping and dining. At the very top of the list of those few homes is the historic Copley House, designed by architect Henry Hester. This uncommonly sophisticated residence connects La Jolla history with contemporary living at its finest. Take in the luxurious finishes and fantastic views from any of the three distinct terraces, each served with exquisite architectural staircases, and even an elevator! Centrally located, this sophisticated 3-bedroom, 3.5-bath, 3,423-square-foot contemporary residence offers outstanding views and supreme walkability. While the front and rear terraces offer privacy for entertaining and recreation, the rooftop deck offers the breathtaking ocean panoramas that La Jolla is famous for around the world. Step inside to its distinguished palette of wood, stone, and glass and find both a quiet respite and a superior setting for intimate entertaining. The primary suite and bedrooms have en suite bathrooms that boast contemporary finishes. Light and bright through skylights and expanses of glass, each of the three levels is easily reached via elevator and elegant staircases. The lucky buyer will have the good fortune to secure a significant property tax reduction via the next Mills Act application window opening in the first quarter of 2026.
