301 Museum Dr is a home for the curious, the contemplative, and the creative, with endless details that lend themselves to daily discovery and inspiration. This quintessential Mid-Century cabin feels imbued with that specific Mount Washington soul, the result of different owners over the decades layering on their own warmth and style, creating an effortlessly charming retreat rich with character and history. Original wood details abound, and quaint built-ins and nooks make for serene moments throughout the home. Large picture windows and a collection of skylights flood both floors with natural light, and patios from the kitchen and primary bedroom provide a casual indoor-outdoor flow. The kitchen and dining area have been opened up and completely redesigned with an intuitive layout and an inviting palette. Upstairs, two spacious bedrooms gaze out at the lush, terraced yard. The subtle-toned upstairs bath includes a secret portal (behind the full length mirror) to a significant space for added storage. The current owners have made many improvements to the home, including a new roof, new windows, new doors, and fully renovated kitchen and baths; a full list of updates is available upon request. Located just north of the Southwest Museum, 301 Museum Dr offers the benefit of Mount Washington's tranquil landscape along with quick proximity to Fig, York, the Metro, Moon Canyon Park, the Self-Realization Fellowship, and of course Mt Washington Elementary.
