N/A, 29 Palms,

Welcome to Clerestory Cabin, a brilliant restoration of a 1959 Homestead, from forgotten shell, to ergonomic, thoughtful, function tiny residence. The design of this home preserves its original Midcentury design to capturing vistas through picture windows in all directions and extra light via its clerestory windows, this homes namesake. Seated high with southerly views towards Joshua National Park, the home enjoys its own serenity and panoramic views of seemingly endless land, few other structures, and only rabbits and squirrels as neighbors.

The interior of this ergo-cabin is well equipped and shares a strong accent material theme of Black and Gold. The galley kitchen preserves head space and window views with under counter Summit appliances; Dishwasher, Fridge, oven/stove, topped with black marble quartz and maximizes storage with and the reverse interior wall is all tall white cabinetry in glossy euro style to reflect light.

Clerestory windows provide the bath with natural light, the Black and Gold accent theme continues, and it centers on a large mirror slab marble quartz shower, it also houses a compact over/under laundry system.

Living and Bedroom spaces are smartly combined. Entertainment systems are overshadowed by picture windows and views. Cushy seating, dining seating, or just space to sleep in with black out rolling blinds. Fire features, innocuous tracked lighting and beamed wooded ceilings provide soft indirect glow, shadows and architectural interest. Temperature controlled interiors offer comfort, outdoor spaces offer the ranges of life. The exterior of this cabin is protected for all seasons, with an eternal standing seam metal roof. The cabin is elevated with patios and walkways all around. While the sun sets west, the desert offers a special treat, anti-sunset, a full rainbow of colors to the east which it enjoys from a chase, a hot tub, a pool, and wait for the stars to rise.
