Rancho (RNC), Long Beach,

The charm of a Cliff May Rancho is difficult to match, with its mid-century modern accents, architectural lines, and casual indoor-outdoor flow. This Cliff May Plan A was built in 1953, and was expanded in the early 60s, and again in the early 70s, to bring the total living area up to over 1,500 square feet. Highlights of the home include original birch cabinetry in the kitchen, birch paneling in the dining area, tongue and groove ceilings, clerestory windows, open beam ceilings, and light and bright indoor spaces. The lot layout provides the advantage of multiple private outdoor areas that include a covered front patio, an expansive backyard, and a long driveway leading to a detached 2-car garage. The property is sited in a quiet interior location within the Rancho Estates, a sought-after neighborhood renowned for its strong sense of community and proximity to 800 acre El Dorado Park and Nature Center. Come and experience what makes these homes, and this special neighborhood, such a unique and wonderful place to live.
